BRIDGE MUSIC

Joseph Bertolozzi's latest public art project, Bridge Music, is a unique, sound-art installation featuring the Mid Hudson Bridge as the instrument itself.

Bridge Music was created by recording the sounds of bridge's surfaces (guard rails, girders, etc.) with various mallets and using those sounds to compose new works, making the Mid Hudson Bridge the largest percussion instrument in the world. These performances of the bridge's sounds are what one hears at the Listening Stations and on the park radios. The music contains no other tones than those of the bridge itself.

The Listening Stations on the bridge's towers are the most visceral way to experience this work. Press a button and hear the music of the bridge on the bridge.

The Park Radios are for those unable to walk on the bridge or who arrive during inclement weather, and are found at 95.3FM within the parks flanking the bridge: Waryas Park in Poughkeepsie and Johnson-Iorio Park in Highland.
